ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention relates to a fastening element for an orthesis pr prosthesis, in particular a hip prosthesis, comprising a supporting element and an at least largely hollow pin extending from the supporting element, while the fixing means are provided for fixing the fastening element in a position in which the hollow pin extends at least largely into a bone.